

Honors Course Activities & Assessment

Detailed instructions and grading criteria for all assignments will be provided on OneDrive. You will receive a link to this drive. Please do not share the link with other students.

The honors component of this course will provide experience in the development, writing, and presentation of a research project broadly related to psycholinguistics. It will include both group-work and individual elements. Good scientific writing includes communicating your ideas clearly and effectively. To support this, you will receive feedback on each assignment or draft you submit. Feedback will focus on both content and style. You are expected to revise initial drafts based on the feedback provided. The final, completed poster will be a compilation of all revised versions of each section.

You must complete each task below with $\geq 80\%$ score to receive credit for completion. Scores below this criterion will require remediation. Please email the instructor for more information. Refer to the main syllabus for assignment late policies.

Type	Task	Due Dates (Wednesdays by 8:00 a.m.)
Individual	Form research groups and complete online spreadsheet	9/6
Individual	Research idea assignment	9/13
Individual	Upload four research articles	9/20
Group	Finalized research idea assignment	9/20
Individual	Literature review assignment	10/4
Group	Methods Draft	10/18
Group	Research Poster Draft	11/15
Group	Research Poster Final	11/29
Group	Presentation at Academic Festival	TBD (Spring 2024)